WORLD IMPORTANCE

London Metals Meeting Features Alberta Oil

Alberta's vast oil discoveries took the limelight at meetings of the fourth mining and metallurgical congress which opened in London, England, this week.

British metallurgist Sir Henry Tizard told delegates from all over the Commonwealth (including 14 Canadians) that the new discoveries in Alberta may prove part of one of the world's largest oil fields.

He also mentioned the new iron deposits in Quebec and Labrador as important to the steel industry of North America.

Sir Henry had good reason to mention the Alberta oil reserves. For the first four months of 1949 Canada's oil production has nearly doubled (from 3,169,600 in first four months of 1948 to 6,393,400 this year), and most of that increase has been from the Alberta fields.

In April this year Alberta produced 1,714,000 barrels of oil compared to 702,000 last year. Outstanding increases were shown in the Leduc sector with an increase from 179,600 barrels to 892,000 barrels, and at Redwater which blossomed forth as a new oil field with 343,500 barrels. Turner Valley, once the oil centre of the west dropped from 385,700 barrels to a measly 111,900 barrels.

The interest shown by the London conference in Alberta's oil reveals the world-wide significance of the western fields.

Military and economic experts of all nations have long been aware that if the cold war ever breaks into a shooting war, Alberta oil will be a vital reservoir for military operations.

And if the peace-time economy continues Alberta oil will be a valuable asset in a world of diminishing oil supplies.

JASPER ROAD AROUSES IRE OF MOTORISTS

The dusty highway from Edmonton to scenic Jasper Park has long been a deterrent to tourists who are reluctant to travel on anything but hard-surfaced roads.

Poor condition of the Jasper highway has been one important factor in the lack of development of the Jasper National Park region compared to the roaring prosperity of the Banff area.

A small sector of the highway is now hard-surfaced for some 50 miles west of Edmonton; the remainder of the road is gravelled to Jasper.

Last week, the up-and-coming Alberta Motor Association which has desperately stumped for better highways in the province, decided to take action on what was termed the "disgraceful" condition of the Jasper road.

Members who had recently driven over the highway said the dust was a hindrance to traffic on the road.

"It could mean an extra $500,000 side and if there had been one it must have been further east.

One thing everybody was agreed on was the rain that followed the wind. Edmonton's heaviest rainfall since last July (in a 24-hour period) dropped on the parched earth just after the storm.

Weather reports said .62 inches of rain fell in the district. Thankful farmers said the downpour would not help the wheat crop much but would do a lot of good for the feed, barley and oats crops.

Woman Stabs Mate Gets Suspended Term

EDMONTON. — Plea of both crown prosecutor and defence counsel for leniency resulted in a suspended six-months sentence for Mrs. William Jex, 63, Monday. Mrs. Jex pleaded guilty to stabbing her husband with a butcher knife at their Lac la Biche home last May 26.

W. J. Shortreed, crown prosecutor, stated there was a certain amount of provocation and extenuating circumstances and that the incident had occurred during a struggle at the couple's home.

"Exeter" is Sold

EDMONTON. — A seadog by preference but a landlubber by necessity, Rev. J. McGrane, whose attempt to sail to Prince Albert with four young sea cadets ended literally on the rocks, will now drive them there by jeep station-wagon.

Rev. McGrane is commander of the Lac la Biche Sea Cadets and last week organized a trip down the North Saskatchewan but ran aground not far from Edmonton.

He abandoned his ship, The Exeter, sold her and is now en route overland.

Drafts and notes differ in that the former is a written order to pay; the latter is a written Promise to pay.

Cellophane was first made in Germany and France.

In tourist business here in a short season if the road is oiled," claimed one member.

A two-man delegation appointed by the A.M.A. immediately button-holed Public Works Minister D. Bruce MacMillan to see what could be done about the road.

The minister squashed any suggestion of oiling the highway. Cost of oiling would amount to $3,000 a mile departmental engineers had found, the minister claimed.

A compromise was offered by the possibility of operating a water-sprinkler system on the road between Seba Beach and Edson. Although only a temporary measure the water system would cut down dust for short periods.

Former Desert Land Yields Rich Timber

EDINBURGH, Scotland — A piece of Scottish land — six miles long and two miles wide — at Culbin, near Nairn, on the Moray Firth, given up for centuries as a useless desert has just given its first yield of rich timber.

In future it will supply large quantities of pit props for United Kingdom mines, and within a few years this six thousand acres waste of rolling sand will become one of the richest forests of Britain.

It has taken man 25 years to undo the damage wrought by a gale in a single night in 1694. For generations back in Scotland's history, Culbin — the granary of Morayshire — was a flourishing agricultural area. Twenty-eight years ago the Forestry Commission took over the waste.

Early efforts to stem the tide of sand by growing trees failed. Now it has been saved by thatching. Today, four thousand acres have been planted with Corsican Pine, Scots Pine, and Lodge Pole Pine. The remaining two thousand acres are to be treated similarly.

Haile Selassie claimed descent from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

Canada's Wide Open Spaces May Be Haven in War-time

In the event of an atomic war, Canadians may be thankful for the great open spaces of their countryside.

According to military experts dispersal of civilians away from bomb targets is likely to be the keynote in any future Air Raid Precaution scheme for the dominion.

This month stocky, popular Major-General F. F. ("Fearless Freddy") Worthington, Canada's civil defence co-ordinator, will return from Europe after a two-month study of civilian ARP schemes in Britain, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Switzerland.

Prior to leaving for the U.K. in May, Gen. Worthington talked over civilian defence plans with U.S. authorities.

The ideas and plans he brings back will probably provide the basis of Canada's civilian defence organization.

At the present time most military authorities favor dispersal of civilians away from likely A-bomb targets in any future conflict.

DISPERSION — Although bomb-shelters for the average-sized Canadian city will no doubt be planned, the bulk of the population will probably be protected by dispersion.

In addition to civilian dispersal, industries, military installations and government offices will be spread out over the country side.

Bomb-proof shelters in the cities would offer considerable protection against the atomic bomb, particularly against fire, radiation, falling masonry and other hazards.

But the cost of providing shelter for all citizens of a large city would be enormous and it is not likely that the government would embark on such a costly project. Furthermore few Canadian cities have "natural" shelters like the Underground tube stations in London and other European cities.

The solution then to most experts, appears to be dispersion into small groups all over the vast spaces of the Canadian terrain. Some idea of the cost in atomic bombs to knock out a major power with concentrated industries was given by one U.S. expert as 6,500 bombs. (He based his calculations on damage in Germany, using as a basis the fact that one atomic bomb is equal to about 4,000 tons of conventional bomb damage.)

CRIPPLING BLOW — Although the urban population of a major country would not be completely destroyed by an A-bomb war, the bombs would be used to knock out major industries and cripple the nation's war effort.

Another phase in civilian protection is the possibility of gas attack or germ warfare.

In this case, dispersal would be the ideal solution for both gas and germ warfare would not be nearly so effective in the open spaces of the countryside.

The defence research board, under Dr. O. M. Solandt, has tackled many of these problems in connection with atomic, gas and biological warfare. Particularly important has been the work of military medical authorities in development of anti-bacteria serums, anti-gas equipment, decontamination work, fire-fighting, etc.

At any rate Canadians may soon have a co-ordinated, organized plan for the protection of the nation's civilian population.

EXPECT BIG FRUIT CROP THIS SUMMER

Canadians with a palate for fresh fruit will be better off this year, but those who like fresh vegetables will find them scarcer than usual.

The Bureau of Statistics, in its 1949 estimates of crop production, predicts that corn will be the only home-grown vegetable that will be more plentiful than usual this summer.

The acreage of asparagus, beans, peas and tomatoes under contract to vegetable processors is sharply reduced.

Loganberries, grown in B.C., are likely to be the only fruit crop showing a decline for this year.

Prospects are good for more apples, pears, plums, prunes, peaches, grapes, apricots and cherries.

Apple production is expected to be increased by 25 per cent, peaches 15 per cent and cherries three per cent with all the others showing substantial increases.

Tele. Switchboard Without Cords

LONDON, Eng. — Since the war Britain's Post Office engineers have been carrying out research on designs for telephone switchboards without cords. They have now developed final models which incorporate what are considered the best features all other existing designs.

The new design which the Post Office engineers have evolved will considerably lighten the telephone operator's work. It embodies a flat switchboard worked by a series of keys and press buttons. The apparatus will store requests for long distance calls so that they are presented to the operator in order of arrival.

Automatic equipment at both the sending and receiving exchanges will be controlled by the one operator. This will be done by what is known as a key sender which works on somewhat similar principles to the dialling system.

Closing Dates For North Sailings

FT. McMURRAY — As a reminder that inevitable winter is on the way, dates of last trips to various points along the northern waterways system and consequent closing dates for shipments to these points were announced Tuesday by Frank W. Broderick, managing director of Northern Transportation Company.

N.T.C. boats will be leaving Fort Smith around August 10th on the last trips of the season to points north of Fort Norman on the Mackenzie river. Deadline is August 4th for delivery to Waterways of shipments for these points, Mr. Broderick said.

For points between Fort Smith and Fort Norman on the Mackenzie River line and for Great Bear Lake the final date for delivery to Waterways will be August 18. Corresponding date for shipments to Yellowknife is September 8th, and for shipments to points between Waterways and Fort Smith, September 15th.

ONTARIO STILL HEADS CURRENT BUILDING BOOM

Construction in Canada is still going ahead at a boom-time rate and has even crept past last year's totals for the first six months, according to MacLean Building Reports Ltd. statistics.

For the first six months building totals hit $488,838,700 compared to $483,035,600 last year. Most of this year's building was concentrated in January, February and March.

Ontario still led the Canadian building parade with a total of $44,364,500 (more than $10,000,000 over last year's total). Western Canada is second with $30,692,000 and Quebec was third with over $23,000,000.

In the west, Edmonton has led the boom with over $20,000,000 in contracts registered last week. By the end of the month Edmonton is expected to pass the all-time record of $27,123,329 set last year.

Within the first week in July alone 80 permits were issued for dwellings valued at $486,000. This is in line with figures from the rest of Canada which show that residential building tops the list with $46,885,600 total.

Other centres showing heavy building expansion include Calgary, Montreal, Windsor, London and Toronto.

Factors boosting construction figures for these cities are: for Calgary a million dollar arena; for Montreal housing and apartment house construction; for Windsor a 500-house construction program; for London, hospital addition and an automobile parts factory; for Toronto, big business buildings.
